The expression of movement has always been a core element of Pip's life from dancing and choreographing to bobsleighbing and hurdling. Her unique career as a BBC, ITV, GMTV television presenter and writer for the Sunday Telegraph continue to inspire her work.

Her paintings represent a felt sense of motion both from her personal experience and the imagined experience of concepts, objects, plants, or animals. Fascinated about how movement fills a space, she depicts the kinaesthetic sense of different environments in her mixed media abstract pieces.

Pip studied Human Movement and Art at St Johns' College York, specialising in dance and fabric design, before completing an MSc in Sport Science at the University of Loughborough. She has continued painting, drawing, and working with clay throughout her life and arrived as an abstract expressionist in 2023.
